Computational fluid dynamics (CFD) is a branch of fluid mechanics that uses numerical analysis and data structures to analyze and solve problems that involve fluid flows. Computers are used to perform the calculations required to simulate the free-stream flow of the fluid, and the interaction of the fluid (liquids and gases) with surfaces defined by boundary conditions.

Definition. If V is the fluid velocity on a small element of a defined curve, and dl is a vector representing the differential length of that small element, the contribution of that differential length to circulation is $d\Gamma = \hat{V} \cdot \hat{dl}$ where \hat{V} is the angle between the vectors V and dl . The circulation around a closed curve C is the line integral: $\Gamma = \oint_C \hat{V} \cdot \hat{dl}$...

As you know, the CFEMA has been working on a standard vehicle inspection form. We felt that due to some unfortunate incidents throughout the country with apparatus, that a standard, simple form, to be used by the drivers, similar to one used by truck drivers in the private sector, can be used to catch possible problems with apparatus before a serious problem occurs.

Professor Frances Kirwan Oxford University (United Kingdom) Frances Kirwan is the Savilian Professor of Geometry at the Mathematical Institute in Oxford. Her research lies in the area of algebraic geometry (mostly over the field of complex numbers) and its links with other parts of geometry, especially symplectic (and hyperkähler) geometry.
