The oak tree in the Blasted Oak, and the Hanging Man's position in it, illustrates these concepts. By combining the Hanging Man card with the Tower card, we change the dynamic drastically. The Tower signifies illumination, enlightenment and the destruction of old thought processes, outmoded ideas and behaviors.

Solid, strong, and enduring, the heroic oak spreads expansively in all directions, steadily growing an imperial command of the landscape. All the more sublime, then, when such a tree is struck by lightning. Stark in its isolation and bearing the deep scars of violence, the "blasted oak" evokes the melancholy of blighted glory and death.

The other night I broke me watch
The screw I couldn't wind
I met a nice young gentleman
And oh, he was so kind
He said his occupation
Was repairing jewelry
He took my watch and said he'd see
What he could do for me.
